The aims of the Biology Society of South Australia are:

- To develop and maintain contact between people with an interest in field biology and the conservation and management of natural resources in South Australia.
- Provide fieldwork opportunities, either directly through the society's own activities, or, more commonly, by advertising requests for assistance by professional ecologists or conservation organisations.
- Organise field camps to provide additional opportunities for members to assist with field-based biological studies.
- Seek government support for field-based activities relevant to the conservation and management of South Australian biota.

that impact the status of biodiversity.

Membership is open to anyone with an interest in field biology. The membership fee is $10 per annum.

Fieldwork Opportunities

Upcoming fieldwork opportunities are listed on our website. Check out the wide range of fieldwork opportunities for volunteers...

General Meetings

BSSA meets four times per year at the University of Adelaide.

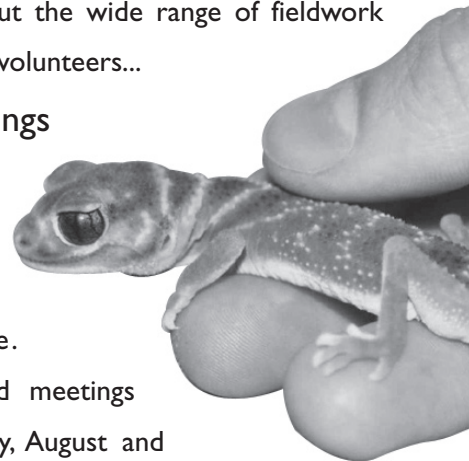

Regular scheduled meetings are in March, May, August and September at 5.30 pm (check website for updates). We have a featured speaker for each meeting as well as an opportunity to meet the featured, "Meet a Scientist" scientist from our newsletter. Please join us for drinks and nibbles on these relaxing yet educational Thursday evenings. The annual Quiz Night is the second Friday in October.

Membership Benefits

Join the Biology Society of South Australia and receive a quarterly newsletter, plus up-to-date information on recent publications in biological areas, outcomes of field surveys and local ecological issues.

Meet friendly, like-minded people including practising biologists who work in your field of interest.
